HOOVER IS TO MAKE SOUTH AMERICAN TOUR

REGARDED AS BRILLIANT STROKE
STATESMANSHIP

APPEARS TO PROMISE UNUSUAL
CAREER IN THE WHITE HOUSE
HOOVER WILL STEAM OUT OF
SAN DIEGO WITHIN A WEEK

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Palo Alto, Calif., Nov. 10.—President-elect Hoover's decision to make an extended South American tour as a prelude to his administration is regarded as a brilliant stroke of statesmanship and appears to promise an unusual career in the White House.

It is a "Good Will" mission on a grand scale, something unique. No other president-elect ever undertook anything like it. The only presidential move that rivals it is Woodrow Wilson's visit to Europe to swing sentiment among the people there behind his League of Nations scheme and to participate in the peace conference.

Harding, as president-elect, took a trip to the Panama Canal, but that was of a different nature. He did not use a battleship, but went on a private liner.

Hoover will steam out of San Diego Harbor, within a week or ten days, on the Battleship Maryland, flagship of the battle fleet, for his South American tour. He plans to start his administration of the nation's affairs by assuring good-will among the Latin-American neighbors whose trade now is a source of rivalry with European nations.

He hopes to forestall in his administration any such trouble as that which has occurred in recent years in Mexico and Nicaragua.

It is not considered likely that Hoover will visit Nicaragua, though this has not been finally determined.

The itinerary, not yet completed, provides for a trip southward along the west coast from San Francisco to Valparaiso, Chile, with stops at the Panama Canal and Lima, Peru, then to Santiago and across the Andes to Buenos Aires and back by Montevideo and Rio De Janeiro. The countries to be visited include Panama, Peru, Chile, Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay.

Hoover will visit Havana, Cuba, on the return northward. During his stop at Panama on the way south he will inspect the Canal, riding on the Panama Canal railway to the eastern end.

From Havana, the Maryland will turn northward to New York where the president-elect is expected to land in the early part of the new year.

If Hoover stops by Nicaragua, he may investigate the possibilities of the long-discussed Nicaraguan canal, in which he has taken an interest.

Whether Mrs. Hoover will make the trip has not been determined. The president-elect will take his younger son Allan.

South America is the only continent Hoover has not visited in his world travels. He has been in close touch with its trade developments as Secretary of Commerce, and has devoted considerable study to the trade situation.

This trip, likewise, will remove him from the ceaseless pressure from office-seekers which every president-elect faces soon after his victory at the polls, and during the long sea trip he can plan his administration.

Hoover will make his first public appearance today since his election when he goes to the Stanford-Santa Clara football game in the Stanford stadium. He will attend church in the famous Stanford chapel.

Washington, Nov. 10.—(UP)—Secretary of Navy Wilbur was called to the White House today to discuss with President Coolidge arrangements for turning over the Battleship Maryland to President-Elect Hoover for use on his projected South American tour.

Following the conference with the president, however, Wilbur declined to say what plans had been made.

New York Curb Exchange Membership at $140,000

New York, Nov. 10.—(UP)—A sale has been made of a New York Curb exchange membership at $140,000. It was announced today. That is a record high and an increase of $5,000 over the previous record sale made earlier this week.

PROHIBIT TEACHING OF EVOLUTION IN
3 STATE SCHOOLS

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 10.—(UP)—Arkansas today had voted by a substantial majority to join Tennessee and Mississippi in prohibiting the teaching of the theory of evolution in state schools.

The anti-evolution referendum was carried in Tuesday's election by a vote of 63,892 to 42,876, virtually complete returns indicated today.

Opponents of the bill today, four days after its passage, were planning court action to block its becoming a law upon the ground that it is unconstitutional. Just what form this legal action will take has not been disclosed.

CORONER'S JURY
INVESTIGATES

WHETHER SHE BURNED HER-SELF TO "PURIFY A SPIRITUAL LOVE"

OR WHETHER SHE WAS A VIC-TIM OF DASTARDLY
FIRE FIEND

By PAUL H. KARNES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Waukegan, Ill., Nov. 10.—(UP)—Whether Miss Elfrida Knaak, pretty Deerfield, Ill., Sunday school teacher, burned herself to "purify a spiritual love" or whether she was a victim of a fire fiend, was the question that confronted a coroner's jury today as the inquest into her death opened here.

Miss Knaak died three days after she was found in the basement of the Lake Bluff, Ill., police station, her legs, arms and head burned to the bone.

In alternating periods of calm and delirium, she murmured two stories of the ordeal in the furnace room.

"I did it myself to prove my love for Hitchy," was her first coherent statement. "Hitchy" was identified as Charles Hitchcock, village policeman and her teacher in sales psychology and elocution.

But just before she died she mumbled another version to Hitchcock who had hobbled to the hospital in a final effort to clear up the mystery.

"I didn't do it, I didn't do it," she murmured and died.

Hitchcock will be one of the chief witnesses. She and Hitchcock had been meeting in the police station at night but he said they merely talked over her work as a book agent.

Miss Knaak's two brothers, two sisters and mother also will testify. They hold to the theory Miss Knaak was lured to the furnace room, drugged, attacked and then burned in an effort to hide the crime.

Waukegan, Ill., Nov. 10.—(UP)—Women friends of Miss Elfrida Knaak testified that she was a normal girl at the opening today of Coroner John L. Taylor's inquiry into her death which resulted from burns received in the furnace of the Lake Bluff police station.

Waukegan, Ill., Nov. 10.—(UP)—Miss Elfrida Knaak's own story of her "ordeal by fire" in the furnace of the Lake Bluff police station was related from the witness stand today by Dr. Arthur J. Rissinger, who attended her until she died.

Dr. Rissinger told the first time at the coroner's inquest the details of an interview with the torture victim which he said had extended over a period of 12 hours. It began shortly after he was called to the police station a week ago Tuesday and found Miss Knaak and horribly burned.

Miss Knaak told him, Dr. Rissinger said, of her "astral love" for Charles Hitchcock, the good-looking policeman and former vaudeville actor, who had taught her public speaking and salesmanship.

Hitchcock was at home with a broken ankle on the night of the burning and has said that he knew nothing of the 29-year-old book agent's love for him.

"I asked her," Dr. Rissinger said, "whether she was in love with Hitchcock and she said that she was 'very much'."

"Hitchy got me out of hell about three months ago," she said. But when I asked her what that meant, she said that I wouldn't understand. Dr. Rissinger said he was of the

Closing Hours of World's Grtest Conflict Recalled, Nations to Honor World War Dead

CEREMONIES IN U. S., FRANCE AND

HONOR YOUNG MEN WHOSE

STRUGGLE

TOMORROW PRES. COOLIDGE
WILL SPEAK IN LEGION SER-VICES AT WASHINGTON
(By United Press)

Closing hours of the world's greatest conflict were recalled today as many nations prepared to honor those who died in the world war.

At least in three nations—United States, France and Great Britain—there will be fitting ceremonies to honor those young men whose lives were given in the struggle for democracy. Each nation will honor its war dead through ceremonies at the tomb of the unknown soldier.

Tomorrow in Washington President Coolidge will speak in the American Legion's ceremonies and his message will be carried through the United States in a special radio hookup of the National Broadcasting company. Other speakers will include General John J. Pershing, who led the American forces in France, and Paul V. McNutt, National Commander of the American Legion.

The ceremony will be between 9:15 a. m. and 10:15 a. m.

At 11 a. m. a bugle will sound taps over the radio. For two minutes the nation will pause—industry will stop—in a silent tribute to the war dead.

King George will lead the ceremony at the tomb of the unknown warrior in London. He will lay a wreath upon the monument to Great Britain's "Glorious Dead."

In Paris a procession will pass through the Arc De Triumphe and will stop in front of the "Eternal Flame," under which rests the body of a French veteran—the representative of the million and more French soldiers who died before the world war came to a close. President Gaston Doumergue will kneel before the tomb and pay the official tribute of the French people.

Germany is trying to forget. Unlike the United States, France and Great Britain there is no official recognition of Armistice day.

Some newspapers commented on it but the people seemed more inclined to ignore the anniversary of the war's ending.

AMENDMENT NO. 1 PASSES, NO. 2 SEEMS TO HAVE LOST OUT

St. Paul, Nov. 10.—(UP)—With Amendment No. 1 apparently safely passed Amendment No. 2, was obviously lost it appeared today as returns still dribbled in from Tuesday's election.

The second amendment, which would have abolished the constitutional provision for double liability of stockholders in state corporations, ran into rural opposition and apparently failed by 35,000 votes the necessary 500,000 votes required for passage. Returns from 3,599 of the state's 3,762 precincts are said to lack sufficient numbers to carry the amendment to victory.

Amendment No. 1, which proposes to divert one-third of the gasoline tax from the state highway department to the county road funds had 519,398 affirmative votes in 3,360 precincts. The unreported handful of precincts is expected to swell the total for the amendment rather than lessen it.

GUNS SALUTE NEW EMPEROR.
124TH IN JAPAN'S HIS-

By MILES W. VAUGHN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Kyoto, Japan, Nov. 10.—(UP)—Under a radiant rainbow—an omen of good luck—Hirohito today was crowned Emperor of all Japan in a colorful rite that was as old as the Japanese empire.

Guns roared a salute as the new emperor, the 124th in Japan's history, and his empress mounted the thrones in the throne room of the royal palace and promised 750,000,000 Japanese that the rule of the new administration would be faithful and happy.

There was a tremendous crowd looking on as Hirohito No Miya and his wife, Nagako, assumed the rule of this great empire in rites that were colorful, filled with pageantry and awe inspiring.

The day was ideal. There had been murky weather for days as the great throng wended its way here from various parts of the nation and even as the royal party came up from Tokyo. But the crowd kept coming.

And today as the first ceremonies of the coronation started a brilliant sun beat down, forecasting peace and happiness, and the temperature moderated so that the throng was comfortable as they watched their new governmental guardian take control of the nation. The rainbow formed in the north and many pointed and remarked on the good omen.

Paris, Nov. 10.—(UP)—Raymond Poincare today sped up his efforts to select a new cabinet, hoping that one might be formed before Armistice day.

Los Angeles, Nov. 10.—(UP)—The legal battle between Frankie Darro's mother and father for his custody may result in the 10-year-old screen actor being taken out of motion picture work.

He said he would appoint a guardian to decide whether or not it would be best to take Frankie out of pictures.

LAVA STREAM FROM MT. ETNA NEAR MASCALI

SPEED AND VOLUME ADDED AS
FRESH LAVA STREAM
POURS OUT

DEVASATION NOW CARRIED IN-
TO NEW TERRI-TORY

Catania, Sicily, Nov. 10.—(UP)—The advancing lava stream from erupting Mount Etna reached the railroad bridge near Mascali at 2 a. m. today, increasing speed and volume as fresh lava was added to the destructive torrent.

The advanced stream now is made up of two of the currents which have joined in a single unit, carrying destruction into a new territory. In two hours today this main stream advanced 90 feet, after having increased in both size and speed hourly during the night.

At the eruptive mouth of the volcano the lava output is almost constant and the levels of the molten stream is unchanged.

At one point, Forte, the stream fell over a slightly inclined place at the rate of four meters a minute. At other points on the level valley the stream advanced at about four meters an hour late Friday.

Friday afternoon the stream overflowed abundantly at a point known as Poggio Vicario, because of obstacles it encountered while pouring through the destroyed city of Mascali, it was hoped the lava gradually would drag part of the debris of Mascali away, thus providing an outlet for the torrents rolling down from the mountain.

Catania, Sicily, Nov. 10.—(UP)—The village of Nunziata crumbled slowly today, house by house, before a steady onflow of lava from Mt. Etna.

The eruption, which already has annihilated the village of Mascali, continued pouring its ceaseless flow of molten rock down the steep side of the mountain top to its fertile slopes and the plain below, creating tremendous devastation.

At the same time, the extreme point of the right wing of the molten mass began moving rapidly towards Strada, which is a section of the important and populous town of Giarrat. The new movement caused great alarm.

The advancing stream of lava, from 15 to 30 feet high in places, poured slowly around Nunziata from three sides, dooming it to certain destruction.

Carrabba, nearby, also is doomed. The lava has caused damage already estimated at $10,000,000, besides making 12,000 persons homeless. Its progress is low and relentless. Pouring forth from three cones near the summit of Etna it sweeps down the steep slopes at about 15 miles an hour, forming a towering, incandescent flow 30 feet wide.

As it reaches the lower levels, it cools on top and its speed gradually slackens, until in the lower valleys it moved at from 30 to 50 feet an hour.

Further toward the plain, its speed is even less.

Many of the farms or little estates in the Mascali and Nunziata districts, now buried under a layer of hardening lava and cooling cinders, belonged to laborers who amassed small fortunes in the United States and retired to their native island, where they bought land and expected to end their days in comfort.

NATION MAY SOON KNOW FUTURE PLANS

GOVERNOR SMITH EXPECTED TO
POUR OIL ON TURGID
WATERS

WILL SPEAK TUESDAY NIGHT
TO PUBLIC THROUGH 40
RADIO STATIONS

New York, Nov. 10.—(UP)—The democrats are "picking up the pieces" earlier than usual. Within a week after last Tuesday's republican victory at the polls, the nation may know something of what the defeated party intends to do about it.

Governor Alfred E. Smith, who by announcing he would never run again removed some of the southern bitterness against northern democrats who forced his nomination, is expected to pour oil on the turbulent waters Tuesday night in his speech through 40 radio stations to the American people.

It is predicted he will stress the need of all men and women uniting behind Herbert Hoover, the man of their choice, and will seek to remove some of the unpleasantness engendered by raising of the religious issue.

It is no secret that democratic leaders attribute Smith's defeat to his being Catholic. In the interests of future harmony, both in their party and in the country, they want to have the religious question buried once and for all.

If Smith fails to outline his party's future, there will be plenty of volunteers eager to do it. One such is William Tobias Butler, National Organizer of the Progressive League for Alfred E. Smith, under whose auspices the progressive republican senator, George Norris of Nebraska, declared for Smith.

Butler said at a meeting here last night that Smith's defeat as a liberal and progressive candidate actually laid the foundation for a "pure progressive movement" in the United States. He said this movement must include the liberal forces of the east, the insurgent farmers of the whole middle west and northwest and the "youth of the new south."

The prohibition and other issues raised by Smith, still live, he added, and "the fight for them has just begun."

FARMER-LABORITES CALL TO ASSEMBLE

Chicago, Nov. 10.—(UP)—Believing the democratic party is about to collapse, farmer-laborites will assemble tomorrow in Sioux Falls, S. D., to map plans for a strong progressive third party in 1932. Tuesday's election has awakened farmer-labor workers, Charles C. Shirley, head of the Illinois delegation, told the United Press today.

"We are going to reorganize the party," Shirley said, "and will start our work for 1932 in Texas, which showed a strong progressive trend Tuesday."

"From Texas we will spread east and west and hope within four years to put a strong presidential ticket in the field that will attract progressive and liberals all over the country."

"Virtually every state will be represented in Sioux Falls either in person or by proxy. We will work for a large membership so that expenses of our campaign will be divided over a large number and thus lightened."

This year the Farmer-Laborites had no ticket in the national field leaving its members to choose between the candidates of the major parties.

The party held its convention in Chicago last July and nominated Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, for president and Will Verreen of Georgia, for vice president, both refused to run.

Present strength of the party is centered in South and North Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa and Oklahoma. The convention in Sioux Falls will continue through Monday.

HIROHITO IS CROWNED HEAD OF ALL JAPAN

COLORFUL RITE PERFORMED IS AS OLD AS THE JAPANESE EMPIRE

GUNS SALUTE NEW EMPEROR,
124TH IN JAPAN'S HIS-
TORY

By MILES W. VAUGHN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Kyoto, Japan, Nov. 10.—(UP)—Under a radiant rainbow—an omen of good luck—Hirohito today was crowned Emperor of all Japan in a colorful rite that was as old as the Japanese empire.

Guns roared a salute as the new emperor, the 124th in Japan's history, and his empress mounted the thrones in the throne room of the royal palace and promised 75000,000 Japanese that the rule of the new administration would be faithful and happy.

There was a tremendous crowd looking on as Hirohito No Miya and his wife, Nagako, assumed the rule of this great empire in rites that were colorful, filled with pageantry and awe inspiring.

The day was ideal. There had been murky weather for days as the great throng wended its way here from various parts of the nation and even as the royal party came up from Tokyo. But the crowd kept coming.

And today as the first ceremonies of the coronation started a brilliant sun beat down, forecasting peace and happiness, and the temperature moderated so that the throng was comfortable as they watched their new governmental guardian take control of the nation. The rainbow formed in the north and many pointed and remarked on the good omen.

Paris, Nov. 10.—(UP)—Raymond Poincare today sped up his efforts to select a new cabinet, hoping that one might be formed before Armistice day.

10-YEAR-OLD SCREEN ACTOR MAY LEAVE PICTURES

Los Angeles, Nov. 10.—(UP)—The legal battle between Frankie Darro's mother and father for his custody may result in the 10-year-old screen actor being taken out of motion picture work.

Superior Judge Walter Desmond ruled that neither Mrs. Ada Johnson, mother of the boy, nor Frank Johnson, Frankie's mother, could give the boy the proper environment.

He said he would appoint a guardian to decide whether or not it would be best to take Frankie out of pictures.

LAVA STREAM FROM MT. ETNA NEAR MASCALI

SPEED AND VOLUME ADDED AS
FRESH LAVA STREAM
POURS OUT

DEVASTATION NOW CARRIED IN-TO NEW TERRI-TORY

Catania, Sicily, Nov. 10.—(UP)—The advancing lava stream from erupting Mount Etna reached the railroad bridge near Mascali at 2 a. m. today, increasing speed and volume as fresh lava was added to the destructive torrent.

The advanced stream now is made up of two of the currents which have joined in a single unit, carrying destruction into a new territory. In two hours today this main stream advanced 90 feet, after having increased in both size and speed hourly during the night.

At the eruptive mouth of the volcano the lava output is almost constant and the levels of the molten stream is unchanged.

At one point, Forte, the stream fell over a slightly inclined place at the rate of four meters a minute. At other points on the level valley the stream advanced at about four meters an hour late Friday.

Friday afternoon the stream overflowed abundantly at a point known as Poggio Vicario, because of obstacles it encountered while pouring through the destroyed city of Mascali, it was hoped the lava gradually would drag part of the debris of Mascali away, thus providing an outlet for the torrents rolling down from the mountain.

Catania, Sicily, Nov. 10.—(UP)—The village of Nunziata crumbled slowly today, house by house, before a steady onflow of lava from Mt. Etna.

The eruption, which already has annihilated the village of Mascali, continued pouring its ceaseless flow of molten rock down the steep side of the mountain top to its fertile slopes and the plain below, creating tremendous devastation.

At the same time, the extreme point of the right wing of the molten mass began moving rapidly towards Strada, which is a section of the important and populous town of Giarrat. The new movement caused great alarm.

The advancing stream of lava, from 15 to 30 feet high in places, poured slowly around Nunziata from three sides, dooming it to certain destruction.

Carrabba, nearby, also is doomed. The lava has caused damage already estimated at $10,000,000, besides making 12,000 persons homeless. Its progress is low and relentless. Pouring forth from three cones near the summit of Etna it sweeps down the steep slopes at about 15 miles an hour, forming a towering, incandescent flow 30 feet wide.

As it reaches the lower levels, it cools on top and its speed gradually slackens, until in the lower valleys it moved at from 30 to 50 feet an hour.

Further toward the plain, its speed is even less.

Many of the farms or little estates in the Mascali and Nunziata districts, now buried under a layer of hardening lava and cooling cinders, belonged to laborers who amassed small fortunes in the United States and retired to their native island, where they bought land and expected to end their days in comfort.

NATION MAY SOON KNOW FUTURE PLANS

GOVERNOR SMITH EXPECTED TO
POUR OIL ON TURGID
WATERS

WILL SPEAK TUESDAY NIGHT
TO PUBLIC THROUGH 40
RADIO STATIONS

New York, Nov. 10.—(UP)—The democrats are "picking up the pieces" earlier than usual. Within a week after last Tuesday's republican victory at the polls, the nation may know something of what the defeated party intends to do about it.

Governor Alfred E. Smith, who by announcing he would never run again removed some of the southern bitterness against northern democrats who forced his nomination, is expected to pour oil on the turbulent waters Tuesday night in his speech through 40 radio stations to the American people.

It is predicted he will stress the need of all men and women uniting behind Herbert Hoover, the man of their choice, and will seek to remove some of the unpleasantness engendered by raising of the religious issue.

It is no secret that democratic leaders attribute Smith's defeat to his being Catholic. In the interests of future harmony, both in their party and in the country, they want to have the religious question buried once and for all.

If Smith fails to outline his party's future, there will be plenty of volunteers eager to do it. One such is William Tobias Butler, National Organizer of the Progressive League for Alfred E. Smith, under whose auspices the progressive republican senator, George Norris of Nebraska, declared for Smith.

Butler said at a meeting here last night that Smith's defeat as a liberal and progressive candidate actually laid the foundation for a "pure progressive movement" in the United States. He said this movement must include the liberal forces of the east, the insurgent farmers of the whole middle west and northwest and the "youth of the new south."

The prohibition and other issues raised by Smith, still live, he added, and "the fight for them has just begun."

FARMER-LABORITES CALL TO ASSEMBLE

Chicago, Nov. 10.—(UP)—Believing the democratic party is about to collapse, farmer-laborites will assemble tomorrow in Sioux Falls, S. D., to map plans for a strong progressive third party in 1932. Tuesday's election has awakened farmer-labor workers, Charles C. Shirley, head of the Illinois delegation, told the United Press today.

"We are going to reorganize the party," Shirley said, "and will start our work for 1932 in Texas, which showed a strong progressive trend Tuesday."

"From Texas we will spread east and west and hope within four years to put a strong presidential ticket in the field that will attract progressive and liberals all over the country."

"Virtually every state will be represented in Sioux Falls either in person or by proxy. We will work for a large membership so that expenses of our campaign will be divided over a large number and thus lightened."

This year the Farmer-Laborites had no ticket in the national field leaving its members to choose between the candidates of the major parties.

The party held its convention in Chicago last July and nominated Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, for president and Will Verdeen of Georgia, for vice president, both refused to run.

Present strength of the party is centered in South and North Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa and Oklahoma. The convention in Sioux Falls will continue through Monday.

Let us show our patriotic spirit by contributing to the dance which they have planned in celebration of this great event.

WOMAN, INJURES 3

St. Paul, Nov. 10.—(UP)—Mrs. Andrew W. Becker, 52, was killed and her husband and two daughters were seriously injured when the family motor car was struck by a Soo Line passenger train at a grade crossing here late Friday.

Witnesses of the accident believed it was caused by the automobile's faulty brakes. The brakes apparently were applied while the car was some distance from the crossing but the car came to a stop squarely over the tracks.

Becker, 50, driver of the car, received a crushed chest and internal injuries but was reported improved at a hospital here today. The two daughters, Mildred, 10, and Arline, 16, also received severe injuries but were said by hospital attendants to have rested comfortably last night.

'DREAM METROPOLIS'
DRAWS INVESTIGATION
IN CALIFORNIA

San Francisco, Nov. 10.—(UP)—Investment of thousands of dollars in a "dream metropolis" in the desert near the California-Nevada border line today caused Stephen Barneson, state real estate commissioner, to announce his department will undertake criminal prosecution.

Land near the proposed site of the Boulder Canyon dam and Las Vegas, Nev., has been subdivided and hundreds of Californians have invested thousands of dollars "in nothing more than fantastic pictures," Barneson claimed.

Investigation of land sold to two elderly women in a tract known as Vista De Mar—"Ocean View"—revealed it was filled with rocks and covered with brush, the real estate department said.

Dorothy Mackaill Plays Tom-Boy Role

During the filming of "Waterfront," at the Lyceum theatre Sunday, Dorothy Mackaill, who is co-starred with Jack Mulhall in the leading role, accomplished two things she had wanted to do for years.

First, Miss Mackaill had always wanted to play a "Tom-boy" role on the screen. In "Waterfront" she is just that from beginning to end. Second, she had always wanted to appear in a sea picture, and, although "Waterfront" is more what the name implies than a tale of the bounding main, the star rides around in a tug-boat, a ferry-boat and a steamer, so she contends it's a sea picture.

Labor Head Asks
Nation's Workers to Support Red Cross

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in Washington, calls upon the workers of the nation to support the twelfth annual roll call of the American Red Cross, November 11-20, in the following statement:

"Through the American Red Cross we find expression for some of our noblest ideals. It is an effective instrument for magnifying many times our personal service to humanity.

"In the face of great disasters, when the injured and homeless run into the thousands, there is little we can do individually. Consolidating our strength through membership in this great organization, our opportunity for service is unlimited.

We must not forget that every day is a day of disaster to thousands. Into homes where disaster strikes your Red Cross goes in your name to be friend and counselor to those upon whom misfortune has laid her heavy hand.

"As President of the American Federation of Labor, I hope and feel confident that the workers of the nation will respond to the Red Cross Roll Call and have a part in this organization's great work."

(Signed)
WILLIAM GREEN,
President
American Federation of Labor.

EVERY YOUNG FASHIONABLE ASPIRES TO A FUR SPORTS COAT

IN a stunning fur sports coat the modern young woman realizes her heart's desire. This season more than ever such a coat is to be coveted, for not only are interesting furs employed in its making but the pelts, especially the thin flat types, are being manipulated with a new cleverness.
Gray furs are very smart. Gray goatskin is particularly so. It is used for full length coats and is a favorite medium for the new short jackets. There is no type smarter for sports wear than is the short jacket of fur. Especially are they popular with the swagging younger set.

"HYMN OF HATE" WRITER IS NOW PEACE APOSTLE

ERNST LISSAUER ONCE VENTED HATE AGAINST ENGLAND
BROTHERLY LOVE IS NOW KEY-NOTE OF LITERARY PRODUCTIONS

By FREDERICK KUH
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Hamburg, Germany, Nov. 10.—The man who wrote the "Hymn of Hate" calling a wartime Prussian militaristic curse upon England's head, has turned pacifist.
That man, Ernst Lissauer, who made "Gott Strafe England," a byword throughout the world, voiced today in an exclusive armistice anniversary statement to the United Press a fervent pacifist plea for world peace.

Lissauer, now inveighs against international preparations for the next war; and brotherly love has become the keynote of his literary productions in place of his war time song: "By shell from sea, by bomb from air."

"Our greeting shall be spread, 'By making each English homestead 'A mansion of the dead.'"
Lissauer, a poet of high repute, now contributing to the best known German liberal publications, repudiates chauvinism and his own beligerent views of former days.

"I composed my 'Hymn of Hate,' not as a fundamental confession of warlike ideals," he told the United Press, "but in my country's direst hour of need and out of years of distress. My poem at that time expressed the sentiment of virtually the entire German people. But soon I turn to other tasks and wrote less martial poems, like 'Psalms.'"
"Every feeling and thinking man must oppose war and do his utmost to prevent new wars. Naturally the experiences of the world war union of European states is a prime necessity."

"The next war will be a war of gases and machines, and it will destroy not only armies, arsenals and factories, but also civilians, women and children behind the lines. Nevertheless the world in 1928 is armed as never before with weapons of every sort. Menacing alliances have been concluded and violent dictatorships created."
"Despite this, a true understanding of the horror of war does not animate all humanity nor stop the massacres of the past."
Lissauer's new ideals find expression in his latest drama, "Jephtha's

Wife," already enacted throughout Germany. This work, he explained, echoes the cry of new and unborn generations against coming wars. Speaking through Leah, wife of Jephtha, Judge of Israel, unborn mankind asks whether it, too, must be annihilated in the battle of nations, in the abyss, and in the rivers; and die for hearth and harvest and gold."

The poet said this play emerged from his own inner struggles and his love for peace, but he suggested his peaceful ideals were perhaps forever unattainable because "man is wild and greedy, and gentleness will never rule this topsyturvy world."

Lissauer hopes this new play, translated into English by Prof. Manthey Zorn of Amherst college, Massachusetts, will give a more correct view of his present beliefs and aspirations than the "Hymn of Hate" which gained him world wide attention.

"DEADWOOD DICK," VETERAN SCOUT, INVITES COOLIDGE

Washington, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Smoking a pipe he has pulled on for half a century and wearing an old sombrero hat, "Deadwood Dick" (Clark, 82, sole survivor of the General Custer scouts, arrived here today by airplane from Rapid City, S. D., bearing an invitation to President Coolidge to spend his summer vacation again in the Black Hills.

The veteran scout appeared to be annoyed by the fog which forced the plane to land at Winchester, Va., yesterday and in commenting on the flight said "I would just as soon have driven a bull cart."

Concern was expressed over his comfort in a fashionable downtown hotel after it was learned he preferred board beds to the modern comfortable mattress and that he had placed his bedding on the floor in the Virginia hotel last night.

The old scout indicated he probably would do the same here and asked that "no one worry about me."

Debutantes and diplomats awaiting luncheon companions in the hotel lobby expressed keen interest in "Deadwood Dick" as he strode in puffing on his pipe and wearing his three gallon hat at a jaunty angle.

It was the scout's first trip out of the Black Hills since he drove a bull cart in 1876 and he appeared to be enjoying it. He dismissed his airplane trip with casual "It was pretty good."

Clark called at the White House shortly before noon and presented the invitation to President Coolidge.

The DAIRY MINERAL FEEDS NEEDED BY COWS

The ordinary old scrub cow needed little mineral in her diet because she could get enough from the natural food consumed; but, the cow found today is a highly specialized milk-producing machine and since milk is rich in mineral salts, it is necessary to add these materials to her food supply.

"Fortunately," says John A. Arey, dairy extension specialist at North Carolina State college, "the feeds grown in North Carolina are deficient in only four of the minerals most needed. These are sodium, chlorine, calcium and phosphorus. These essential minerals can be supplied in an inexpensive form by using common salt, finely ground limestone and odorless steamed bone meal. There is no advantage in buying and feeding complex mineral mixtures because some of these contain a number of unimportant mineral elements which are not needed by the cow and sometimes cause injurious effects."

Mr. Arey states that common salt furnishes both sodium and chlorine and can be mixed with the grain at the rate of one pound of salt to each ten pounds of grain. In addition, salt should be placed in the stables or pasture so that the cattle may have free access to it at all times. The practice of salting at intervals of one or two weeks is not recommended, he states.

The need for calcium and phosphorus is apparent when one realizes that 85 per cent of the skeleton is composed of these two elements. Also 50 per cent of the minerals in the milk is composed of the same two elements. Both are essential for growth, reproduction of young and production of milk. They are generally deficient in the feed ration and if not supplied the cow will draw on her own skeleton for a supply and thus develop a case of weak bones.

Dairy Cow Has Reasons for Eating Liberally

The dairy cow must eat for at least five reasons over and above the fact that she gets hungry. She must eat first in order to maintain her body, keeping up her normal temperature and providing for the repair of her tissues. A large proportion of her total feed goes into milk production. Reproduction calls for another important supply of nutrition. When the cow is dry, she should be fattened because just after she has freshened, she actually produces more milk than she eats feed to produce, and must have a reserve on her body. Finally, she must eat to grow, because the average large cow is a better producer than the average small cow.

Specific recommendations for the feeding of all these demands for the dairy cow are included in one of the bulletins issued by the extension service of the Ohio State university, Bulletin No. 72, entitled, "Feeding Dairy Cattle." The authors are C. L. Blackman, specialist in animal husbandry, and Ivan McKellip, specialist in dairying.

Palatability of Great Importance in Feeding

Palatability is of great importance in successful feeding. The best results cannot be obtained with any feed which is not well relished by the cow; consequently any unpalatable feed to be used should be mixed with those that are appetizing.

In making the grain mixture care should be exercised that too large a quantity of either constipating or laxative feed is not included. Cottonseed meal, for example, is decidedly constipating and should be fed with laxative grains or succulents, such as silage or roots. For ordinary feeding not more than one-third of the grain should be cottonseed meal. In some sections large quantities have been fed, but this practice is not to be recommended. On the other hand, linseed oil meal, because of its distinctly laxative action, should not be fed ordinarily in greater quantities than one and one-quarter pounds a day.

Prevent White Scours

White scours in new born calves is a disease likely to cling to certain premises or herds. Outbreaks frequently destroy practically every calf born. It is caused by various varieties of the colon bacillus and allied microbe species. Most of those or dinarily are harmless inhabitants of the intestines of the older animals. What causes them to go on a calf killing rampage is not known at all.

Feeding Young Calf

The young calf usually will take about six to ten pounds of skim milk daily, which is increased gradually to sixteen to twenty pounds by the time the calf is four months old. In addition, a little grain and some legume hay is provided. During this time cleanliness of feed and surroundings are of great importance. If it is possible to have each calf tied separately, the amount of feed can be regulated better and the feeder can watch the condition of each calf.

Birds Warn of Raids

Pheasants are highly susceptible to distant sounds. During the World War they gave warning of approaching Zeppelin raids 15 to 30 minutes before the raiders were over the district. The loud crowing of the cock birds were listened for in England in those days as a sure sign of impending danger.

Mr. Arey states that common salt furnishes both sodium and chlorine and can be mixed with the grain at the rate of one pound of salt to each ten pounds of grain. In addition, salt should be placed in the stables or pasture so that the cattle may have free access to it at all times. The practice of salting at intervals of one or two weeks is not recommended, he states.

The need for calcium and phosphorus is apparent when one realizes that 85 per cent of the skeleton is composed of these two elements. Also 50 per cent of the minerals in the milk is composed of the same two elements. Both are essential for growth, reproduction of young and production of milk. They are generally deficient in the feed ration and if not supplied the cow will draw on her own skeleton for a supply and thus develop a case of weak bones.

Dairy Cow Has Reasons for Eating Liberally

The dairy cow must eat for at least five reasons over and above the fact that she gets hungry. She must eat first in order to maintain her body, keeping up her normal temperature and providing for the repair of her tissues. A large proportion of her total feed goes into milk production. Reproduction calls for another important supply of nutrition. When the cow is dry, she should be fattened because just after she has freshened, she actually produces more milk than she eats feed to produce, and must have a reserve on her body. Finally, she must eat to grow, because the average large cow is a better producer than the average small cow.

Specific recommendations for the meeting of all these demands for the dairy cow are included in one of the bulletins issued by the extension service of the Ohio State university, Bulletin No. 72, entitled, "Feeding Dairy Cattle." The authors are C. L. Blackman, specialist in animal husbandry, and Ivan McKellip, specialist in dairying.

Palatability of Great Importance in Feeding

Palatability is of great importance in successful feeding. The best results cannot be obtained with any feed which is not well relished by the cow; consequently any unpalatable feed to be used should be mixed with those that are appetizing.
In making the grain mixture care should be exercised that too large a quantity of either constipating or laxative feed is not included. Cottonseed meal, for example, is decidedly constipating and should be fed with laxative grains or succulences, such as silage or roots. For ordinary feeding not more than one-third of the grain should be cottonseed meal. In some sections large quantities have been fed, but this practice is not to be recommended. On the other hand, linseed oil meal, because of its distinctly laxative action, should not be fed ordinarily in greater quantities than one and one-quarter pounds a day.

Prevent White Scours

White scours in new born calves is a disease likely to cling to certain premises or herds. Outbreaks frequently destroy practically every calf born. It is caused by various varieties of the colon bacillus and allied microbe species. Most of those ordinarily are harmless inhabitants of the intestines of the older animals. When causes them to go on a calf killing rampage is not known at all.

Feeding Young Calf

The young calf usually will take about six to ten pounds of skim milk daily, which is increased gradually to sixteen to twenty pounds by the time the calf is four months old. In addition, a little grain and some legume hay is provided. During this time cleanliness of feed and surroundings are of great importance. If it is possible to have each calf tied separately the amount of feed can be regulated better and the feeder can watch the condition of each calf.

Birds Warn of Raids

Phaenians are highly susceptible to distant sounds. During the World war they gave warning of approaching Zeppelin raids 15 to 30 minutes before the raiders were over the district. The loud crowing of the cock birds were listened for in England in those days as a sure sign of impending danger.

MOVE FOR EARLIER CLOSING HOURS

A MOVE was begun at St. Paul by three members of the state legislature for an earlier closing hour of the polls on election day. State Senator George W. Rodenberg and Representatives J. R. Sweitzer and Fred G. Blum declared that they would seek to have a law passed by the coming legislature which would close the polls an hour or so sooner than at present.

Minnesota is about the last state in the Union to close its doors on election night, the polls being open in the cities from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m. and in the rural districts from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

The East closes early and makes an accurate and fast count. There is absolutely no need in Minnesota of such a late closing hour, which gives each precinct in a city 15 hours of a wait for the ballots to come in and then, tired out, to spend hours counting.

The Crosby precinct, which for years has been large enough for two precincts, this election cast 1135 votes and the clerks and judges there were in attendance 43½ hours. To ask any board to work this length of time without sleep is an injustice. Any man or woman, engaged in any other line of business, would resent such hours. The labor can be shortened if the village sets about to make two precincts out of the abnormally large one precinct.

The Brainerd Dispatch for years has advocated earlier closing of polls, a shorter voting day, so as to permit judges and clerks to finish their count more quickly. We hope something is done about it at the next session of the legislature.

Looking at our Duluth Herald this morning we find some more reasons given for earlier closing hours of polling places. Says the paper:

Another reason why Minnesota should abolish its absurdly late hour of 9 o'clock for closing its polling places is that in the eyes of the nation at large it makes Minnesota look like a backward and benighted state.

The evening newspapers of the country in their election tables Wednesday night had returns enough from every state in the Union except Minnesota to make it sure how they had gone.

From Minnesota the table showed returns from only 985 precincts out of a total of 3,762—not a large enough proportion to warrant anybody in regarding the result as final.

Final results in forty-seven states—only scattering returns from Minnesota.

What must the country at large, seeing that, think of Minnesota?

Inevitably, one of these things, or both: "They must be all frozen up in Minnesota, and are bringing the returns in on dogsleds."

Or, "What can you expect from the backwoods?"

About the first thing the Minnesota legislature ought to do when it meets in January is to abolish that absurd closing hour and make it 7 o'clock instead of 9.

FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH

A NEW fountain of youth has been located, and it's not limited to Florida either. It's right in your old bath tub.

Physicians at a meeting of the American College of Physical Therapy, as reported in the Chicago Daily Tribune, laid great store by the morning plunge in cold water, saying they were sure a course of them would restore something of the youthful vigor.

Dr. W. H. Riley of the Battle Creek sanitarium, said that "the cold plunge does a number of beneficial things for the body. It tones up the whole system. First and foremost, it increases the circulation of the blood. It improves digestion and increases respiration. It stimulates the skin and stimulates kidney action. It improves the heart action and brings up the blood pressure, and it increases the hemoglobin, which is the oxygen carrier of the blood. In addition to all this it stimulates the rate at which the vital processes of energy are produced."

"There is little danger in a short cold bath for any person between the ages of 15 and 55. Before 15 and after 55, persons should be careful. At any rate, if there is to be value, one should have started and made a habit of it long before middle age. The temperature of the water generally should be about 65 or 70 degrees. After one gets used to the cold plunge, that may be lowered."

The remedy is certainly a cheap one and if directions are carefully followed, may bring back youth or else act as a retentive measure.

And if you care to go to the lakes, 700 in easy motoring distance from Brainerd, you may at proper seasons save wear and tear on your bath tub, and go in bathing, thus combining the bath with the beneficent air treatment, violet rays of the sun, etc.

NO DISPARAGEMENT OF NELSON

THE Red Wing Republican contends that Senator Shipstead's victory is no disparagement of Arthur E. Nelson's ability and personal qualities, which it predicts will yet bring him to the front in public affairs, and goes on to say: "Nelson simply undertook the impossible at this time. Senator Shipstead's next term in the Senate may find him in a different situation than during his first term. He is not likely to again hold the balance of power in the Senate. It would seem that Shipstead will find it necessary to announce himself a Republican as soon as he can do so gracefully, if he is to represent the state adequately under the new conditions. Had he done this a year or two ago he would probably have had no opposition at this election."

A WORD FOR GOV. SMITH

GOVERNOR SMITH for years to come can make a thousand dollars a week on the lecture platform. And he wouldn't sell his religion for millions. He is a big, brave man, who will wield great power in the world till the last days of his life. Another thing: He comes out of one of the fiercest battles in the history of American politics with a name and fame untarnished and the love and respect of millions of his countrymen.—Fairmont Sentinel.

AN AGGRESSIVE CAMPAIGNER

LOOKING back now upon the campaign in retrospect the American people owe a very distinct debt to Alfred E. Smith. He fought this campaign sincerely on what he believed to be the issues. Whatever he may have lacked in information about the problems with which he was endeavoring to cope, he more than made up in aggressive enthusiasm.—Mankato Free Press.

Radio corporations opened at 256, up six points and quickly ran up to 259 in long strings of transactions. General Motors up more than a point. U. S. Steel opened unchanged at 165½ and held around that level, while vanadium and A. M. Beyers spurred upward.

Washington, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Reallocation of the nation's broadcasting facilities in accordance with the Davis amendment becomes effective at 3 a. m. Sunday.

Improved radio receptions to all sections is expected to result from the new set up developed by the Federal Radio commission after months of study.

Radio broadcasting facilities were divided equally among the five radio zones of the country so as to give each zone 40 clear channels for national service.

"The commission is confident that the new set up will bring about a big improvement in service to the listeners of the country," Commissioner Eugene O. Sykes said today. "There should be a great reduction in interference and a corresponding improvement in reception."

How can anyone keep up with the times if he doesn't read the advertisements?

It is often said that the advertisements offer a liberal education. The new electrical appliances that take the drudgery out of housework first saw the light of day in the advertising columns. A vegetable substitute for silk is discovered, and you hear about it first through an advertisement.

What are the new models in motor-cars? The advertisements tell you, before you go to the auto show. What's the best show in town? What's the newest in hats and shoes and golf-togs? Consult the advertisements. That's the way to keep up with the times. That's the way to make the family budget go farther.

Read the advertisements in this paper regularly. The big ones and the little ones. Search them through for values you might otherwise never know about.

Washington, Nov. 10.—(U.P.)—Reallocation of the nation's broadcasting facilities in accordance with the Davis amendment becomes effective at 3 a. m. Sunday.

Improved radio receptions to all sections is expected to result from the new set up developed by the Federal Radio commission after months of study.

Radio broadcasting facilities were divided equally among the five radio zones of the country so as to give each zone 40 clear channels for national service.

"The commission is confident that the new set up will bring about a big improvement in service to the listeners of the country," Commissioner Eugene O. Sykes said today. "There should be a great reduction in interference and a corresponding improvement in reception."

How can anyone keep up with the times if he doesn't read the advertisements?

It is often said that the advertisements offer a liberal education. The new electrical appliances that take the drudgery out of housework first saw the light of day in the advertising columns. A vegetable substitute for silk is discovered, and you hear about it first through an advertisement.

What are the new models in motor-cars? The advertisements tell you, before you go to the auto show. What's the best show in town? What's the newest in hats and shoes and golf-togs? Consult the advertisements. That's the way to keep up with the times. That's the way to make the family budget go farther.

B. H. S. VETERANS CLASH WITH C.I. IN HOLIDAY MEET

RANGE FIELD TO BE SCENE OF IMPORTANT GAME; LOCALS HAVE CHANCE TO TIE

TEAM COMPLETES WEEK OF STIFF PRACTICES; MEN IN GOOD SHAPE FOR CLASSIC

Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Crosby-Ironton field will find the Brainerd high school warriors battling their last game of the season, an important one in this respect that a win for Brainerd will mean a three team conference victory with Brainerd sharing first place honors with Crosby-Ironton and Staples.

A win for Crosby-Ironton will place the range team at the top of the group without a defeat for the season.

The game will also be significant in that many seniors of the Brainerd high will be playing their last football game under the colors of the blue and white.

Those playing their last game for the school are:

Captain Earl Fuller who directed the Brainerd gridiron warriors through the season in real leadership form.

Harry Goedderz, right end who has been the most consistent end blocker this year making the running plays in the St. Cloud Cathedral game possible.

Orris Larson, right tackle who is playing his first year, but playing a good game. He is fast and has weight.

George McCaffrey, tackle, who although handicapped at the first of the year by sickness has come along enough to get in the majority of the games.

Edward Lien, sub lineman who has been one of the most consistent workers on the squad.

John Galtion, quarter and half, who has been the most consistent ground gainer of the year.

Lawrence Swanson, blocking half who has been playing a steady game all year.

Frank Wise, halfback, who has played but little this year because of injury and not being on the squad at the first of the year will end his high school football career Monday. During the games he saw action he proved himself to be a good ground gainer.

Alex Nelson who was injured last week was just sufficient snap to the air to make a football fan relish the contest.

FIRST QUARTER—Notre Dame won the toss and chose to receive Brady to Cheigny, gained 21 yards the kickoff at the north goal. Brady for Notre Dame. Another Niemiec came back 15 yards to his 37-yard line. The Irish could not gain and more. The Cadets held stubbornly in 0. Niemiec punted to Army's 41-yard own territory and kept punting. The

NOTRE DAME ARMY GAME ATTRACTS MANY

GENUINE FOOTBALL TANG IN AIR TODAY AS NEW YORKERS ATTEND

IRISH OF INDIANA AND CADETS OF WEST POINT IN ANNUAL CLASSIC

By FRANK GETTY

(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 10.—(UP)—There was a genuine football tang in the air today as New Yorkers by the thousands prepared to enter Yankee stadium for the annual Notre Dame-Army game.

As a spectacle there is nothing on the football list for New York fans greater than this annual encounter between the Irish of Indiana and the cadets from West Point. The marching of the 1,250 cadets into the stadium, the vast thousands banded around the big stadium and the scintillating football that always comes, make this the red letter day for the New York season.

But as for the game itself—the Army should win.

The Irish have had one of their worst seasons. They have been defeated and they have made sorry showings. But they are coming on and with Cheigny, Collins and Niemiec ready to start in the backfield the cadets are far from jubilant about the prospects. Niemiec and Cheigny are dangerous threats against any team.

The Army has Chris Cagle, the fleet back who has loped through so many good teams this year, ready to send at the Irish in hopes of duplicating, at least, their 18-0 victory over Notre Dame last year.

Yankee stadium probably will be filled. The day was clear and there was just sufficient snap to the air to

SOME RUGGED MINNESOTA LINEMEN

An Inspiration at Harvard

By QUIN HALL.

DESPITE the tradition that Harvard is rather a staid and dignified institution, the joy, as the saying goes, is rather unrefined around the Square in Cambridge these days. And it is going to take more than one or two setbacks to put the damper on the cheering for this season's football team which is being led by Capt. Art French.

Last year Harvard had a rather spotty season. Early in the schedule the Crimson was knocked off by Purdue and later suffered defeats at the hands of Dartmouth, Pennsylvania and Yale. It won from Vermont, Holy Cross, Indiana and Brown but the year wasn't one to call for any uncouth carrying on.

This year everything seems to be slightly different—at least the season started off with a bang—and it looks as if the Crimson would be able to finish the grind with a much better record than last year and thus knock the dignity of the institution for a row of brick tenements.

Art French may have a lot to do with the ultimate burning of red fire in the Square and even in the Commons over across the river in Boston.

In the early games of the season Art tore through the opposition and not only did a lot of ground gaining himself but his playing seemed to be an inspiration for the entire Crimson machine. Coach Horween expressed himself as being thoroughly satisfied with the manner in which French was pepping up the squad and the alumni gathered in groups all over the country and shook hands and chipped in and bought Roman candles to be delivered at the close of the season.

French is one of those runners who must be checked before he passes the scrimmage line or at least by a tackler who is in front of him. It's warbled that he is a difficult proposition to bring down from the back once he has hit his stride. Big things are naturally expected of him by the Harvard rooters.

A noted track man, French looks like one of the best triple threats in the East this Fall and unlike most track men who go in for football the Harvard captain exhibits no tendency to slow up when he is about to be tackled. He can toss and catch passes expertly, he can punt fairly well and he can run with the best of them.

Horween has drilled the squad patiently in the forward pass and in the early games the Crimson used it regularly as an offensive weapon and not merely as a life saver as they have been accustomed to use it in the past. This slight change may spell the difference between victory and defeat for Harvard. Such things are possible.

While Capt. French is a capable player he is by no means the only star in the Harvard line-up and this year Horween is blessed with a large group of reserves who are nearly as dependable as the so-called first-string players. Altogether it looks like a great football year at Harvard and the inspiration given to the team by French may be just what was lacking last year and in other lean gridiron years at Cambridge.

The Crimson meets Pennsylvania at Cambridge this afternoon and there is a 24-0 defeat in 1927 staring the Harvardites in the face. Such a score given a wide margin for revenge and the Crimson will be fighting for that revenge this afternoon. A week hence Harvard again meets Holy Cross and one of the big games of the schedule comes on November 24, when the Crimson meets its old rival, Yale, at New Haven. Here, again, will be a chance for revenge and Harvard has been pointing all Fall for a win over Yale.

And don't forget that Harvard is an inspired team this year—inspired by a tip-toeing wide threat by the name of Art French, and if the Crimson does bow in defeat it probably won't be due to the fact that the inspiration lagged or shirked his duty.

B. H. S. VETERANS CLASH WITH C.I. IN HOLIDAY MEET

RANGE FIELD TO BE SCENE OF IMPORTANT GAME; LOCALS HAVE CHANCE TO TIE

TEAM COMPLETES WEEK OF STIFF PRACTICES; MEN IN GOOD SHAPE FOR CLASSIC

Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Crosby-Ironton field will find the Brainerd high school warriors battling their last game of the season, an important one in this respect that a win for Brainerd will mean a three team conference victory with Brainerd sharing first place honors with Crosby-Ironton and Staples.

A win for Crosby-Ironton will place the range team at the top of the group without a defeat for the season.

The game will also be significant in that many seniors of the Brainerd high will be playing their last football game under the colors of the blue and white.

Those playing their last game for the school are:

Captain Earl Fuller who directed the Brainerd gridiron warriors through the season in real leadership form.

Harry Goedderz, right end who has been the most consistent end blocker this year making the running plays in the St. Cloud Cathedral game possible.

Orris Larson, right tackle who is playing his first year, but playing a good game. He is fast and has weight.

George McCaffrey, tackle, who although handicapped at the first of the year by sickness has come along enough to get in the majority of the games.

Edward Lien, sub lineman who has been one of the most consistent workers on the squad.

John Gafioni, quarter and half, who has been the most consistent ground gainer of the year.

Lawrence Swanson, blocking half who has been playing a steady game all year.

Frank Wise, halfback, who has played but little this year because of injury and not being on the squad at the first of the year will end his high school football career Monday.

During the games he saw action he proved himself to be a good ground gainer.

Alex Nelson who was injured last week will not be able to play Monday. He has played a consistent game all through the season in the line.

Others who will make the trip and who have been instrumental in the season's success, being left for another year are: Nathan Schuety, Gerald Halvorsen, Joe Hogan, John Hoffbauer, Ray Paine, Gaylord Kinney, Roger Kleven, William Dosh, Alfred Abrahamson, James Garvey, Malcolm Lammon, Carrol Guin, Arthur Hautala, Elwood Anderson, Ralph Luken, Leo Dybvik, Bernard Foster and LeRoy Wyett.

GENUINE FOOTBALL TANG IN AIR TODAY AS NEW YORKERS ATTEND

IRISH OF INDIANA AND CADETS OF WEST POINT IN ANNUAL CLASSIC

By FRANK GETTY

(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Nov. 10.—(UP)—There was a genuine football tang in the air today as New Yorkers by the thousands prepared to enter Yankee stadium for the annual Notre Dame-Army game.

As a spectacle there is nothing on the football list for New York fans greater than this annual encounter between the Irish of Indiana and the cadets from West Point. The marching of the 1,250 cadets into the stadium, the vast thousands banded around the big stadium and the scintillating football that always comes, make this the red letter day for the New York season.

But as for the game itself—the Army should win.

The Irish have had one of their worst seasons. They have been defeated and they have made sorry showings. But they are coming on and with Chevigney, Collins and Niemiec ready to start in the backfield the cadets are far from jubilant about the prospects. Niemiec and Chevigney are dangerous threats against any team.

The Army has Chris Cagle, the fleet back who has loped through so many good teams this year, ready to send at the Irish in hopes of duplicating, at least, their 18-0 victory over Notre Dame last year.

Yankee stadium probably will be filled. The day was clear and there was just sufficient snap to the air to make a football fan relish the contest.

FIRST QUARTER—Notre Dame won the toss and chose to receive the kickoff at the north goal. Brady for Notre Dame. Another Niemiec came back 15 yards to his 37-yard line. The Irish could not gain and more. The Cadets held stubbornly in 0.

Irish were aggressive and kept the end run. Neither side could gain Army constantly backed up against the south goal line. The first period ended with the ball in Notre Dame's possession in mid-field and the score was Army 0; Notre Dame 0. Niemiec punted to Army's 41-yard own territory and kept punting. The

By QUIN HALL.

DESPITE the tradition that Harvard is rather a staid and dignified institution, the joy, as the saying goes, is rather unrefined around the Square in Cambridge these days. And it is going to take more than one or two setbacks to put the damper on the cheering for this season's football team which is being led by Capt. Art French.

Last year Harvard had a rather spotty season. Early in the schedule the Crimson was knocked off by Purdue and later suffered defeats at the hands of Dartmouth, Pennsylvania and Yale. It won from Vermont, Holy Cross, Indiana and Brown but the year wasn't one to call for any uncouth carrying on.

This year everything seems to be slightly different—at least the season started off with a bang—and it looks as if the Crimson would be able to finish the grind with a much better record than last year and thus knock the dignity of the institution for a row of brick tenements.

Art French may have a lot to do with the ultimate burning of red fire in the Square and even in the Commons over across the river in Boston.

In the early games of the season Art tore through the opposition and not only did a lot of ground gaining himself but his playing seemed to be an inspiration for the entire Crimson machine. Coach Horween expressed himself as being thoroughly satisfied with the manner in which French was pepping up the squad and the alumni gathered in groups all over the country and shook hands and chipped in and bought Roman candles to be delivered at the close of the season.

French is one of those runners who must be checked before he passes the scrimmage line or at least by a tackler who is in front of him. It's warbled that he is a difficult proposition to bring down from the back once he has hit his stride. Big things are naturally expected of him by the Harvard rooters.

A noted track man, French looks like one of the best triple threats in the East this fall and unlike most track men who go in for football the Harvard captain exhibits no tendency to slow up when he is about to be tackled. He can toss and catch passes expertly, he can punt fairly well and he can run with the best of them.

Horween has drilled the squad patiently in the forward pass and in the early games the Crimson used it regularly as an offensive weapon and not merely as a life saver as they have been accustomed to use it in the past. This slight change may spell the difference between victory and defeat for Harvard. Such things are possible.

While Capt. French is a capable player he is by no means the only star in the Harvard line-up and this year Horween is blessed with a large group of reserves who are nearly as dependable as the so-called first-string players. Altogether it looks like a great football year at Harvard and the inspiration given to the team by French may be just what was lacking last year and in other lean gridiron years at Cambridge.

The Crimson meets Pennsylvania at Cambridge this afternoon and there is a 24-0 defeat in 1927 staring the Harvardites in the face. Such a score gives a wide margin for revenge and the Crimson will be fighting for that revenge this afternoon. A week hence Harvard again meets Holy Cross and one of the big games of the schedule comes on November 21, when the Crimson meets its old rival, Yale, at New Haven. Here, again, will be a chance for revenge and Harvard has been pointing all fall for a win over Yale. And don't forget that Harvard is an inspired team this year—inspired by a rip-roaring triple threat by the name of Art French, and if the Crimson does bow in defeat it probably won't be due to the fact that the inspiration lagged or shirked his duty.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 10—(UP)—Coach Glen Thistlethwaite's Badgers, one of the three undefeated teams in the Big Ten, will play A. A. Stagg's Chicago Maroons at Camp Randall today. Despite the fact that Chicago team has failed to win a conference game this year, the traditional rivalry is such that a record crowd of 45,000 is expected.

The Cardinals are decided favorites to win, and advance to next week's game against Iowa still having a chance to win the championship.

IOWA AND OHIO STATE STRUGGLE

CHAMPIONSHIP OF WESTERN FOOTBALL CONFERENCE AT STAKE

Columbus, O., Nov. 10—(UP)—The championship of the western football conference is at stake in today's game between Iowa and Ohio State, in the Ohio stadium. The two schools have the only undefeated and untied elevens in the conference.

Because of the championship issue involved, the game is regarded as one of the most important games in the country today and probably will attract a crowd of 90,000 fans.

Ohio State will be handicapped by the injuries which may prevent Barratt and Raskowski from playing the entire game, but are favored to win.

Iowa is expected to depend upon its powerful running attack, headed by Maves McLani, the speedy Pape and Glasgow.

SECOND QUARTER—Colerick replaced E. Collins. Niemce got off a beautiful kick to Army's 2 yard line. Murrell kicked and Brady was downed on the Cadets' 38 yard line. Fred Collins ran right end for 20 yards. Chevigny plunged for five. Collins made it first down on Army's 3 yard line. Collins fumbled and Murrell recovered for the Army behind the goal line. It was a touch-back and the Cadets put the ball in play on their 20 yard line. Murrell punted to the Irish 35 yard line. The Irish failed to gain and punted. Cagle got away for nine yards at left end. Murrell hit the line for first down on the Army 36 yard line. Army kicked. O'Keefe was hurt and replaced by Allen. Chevigny ran left end for 12 yards. Collins added 10 for another first down. Army held and the Irish punted. The ball was on the Cadet 20 yard line when the half ended. Score: Army 0; Notre Dame 0.

ENSEMBLE FOR GRANDSTAND WEAR FLAUNTS A VIVID TOUCH OF COLOR

A GAIN the hand of time points to the calendar, reminding football fans of coming events. For the football audience to be this call to college colors involves something more than merely choosing pennants and getting "in voice" ready to shout, for along with all these matters of importance comes the usual "what-to-wear" question.

Of course every coed will be wanting one of the new sweaters which has its own scarf attached. The smart part of the scarf is that it has only one throw end, and this repeats the gay stripes which are interknitted into the blouse itself. See it in the picture? With a knitted or kasha coat and skirt (the suit illustrated is of kasha) such an ensemble is just the thing for grandstand wear on a sunny, chilly autumn day.

Or how about an ensemble fashioned of one of the new this season decorative woolen fabrics which are so designed that colorfully patterned yokes, borders, stripes, motifs and such are woven into the solid-toned fabric in such a way that they supply a self-trimming for the coat, for the skirt is usually in the plain solid tones. There is something smartly individual about a costume which stresses a material such as this which carries a designing all its own. They are as exclusive as hand-blocked patterning, only as said before, the patterning is interwoven in the yardage. The weaves of the fabrics themselves are interesting. Many of them are a combination of wool and silk or wool and rayon.

There is nothing smarter than this season's all-wool knitted suits which reproduce tweed designs and colorings. These are of the three-piece type, and show either a cardigan or a long coat, a jumper in blended colorings and a skirt which achieves a rather full hemline. The way color schemes are worked out in these knitted suits, 'tis a joy to behold. The wondrous new browns, how gloriously do they mingle with rust shades, orange tones and allied shades, often with a dash of metal interwoven.

Then there is printed jersey, do not forget this interesting material. It makes up stunningly with plain jersey. Oh! yes and there is velveteen and corduroy, they are both smartly in fashion this season.

Red Cross Membership Is Sound Investment, Business Leader Says

"We believe that individual membership in the American Red Cross is a sound investment, yielding the investor tremendous returns in personal satisfaction," is the statement of William Butterworth, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in endorsing the twelfth annual roll call of the American Red Cross, Nov. 11-29.

Mr. Butterworth's statement follows: "The men engaged in carrying forward the business and industry of this nation are quick to respond, and respond generously, when human suffering calls for their assistance. They welcome the existence of an organization authorized by international treaty and congressional charter to act as their agency, and the agency of all the people, in providing relief in disaster and promoting their beneficial services to humanity. The nation's business men take particular pleasure in supporting The American National Red Cross because it has applied sound and efficient business technique and administrative methods without sacrifice of sympathy and understanding in the prevention and mitigation of human suffering.

"The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, as representative of the nation's business, has such confidence in the American Red Cross that it calls upon its member organizations to contribute to relief in disaster only upon Red Cross assurance that an appeal is necessary.

"We believe that individual membership in the American Red Cross is a sound investment, yielding the investor tremendous returns in personal satisfaction. The Red Cross is seeking to increase its membership to five million; the opportunity to join its ranks is presented by the Red Cross Chapters throughout the nation from November 11 to 29. It is good to be a link in this great chain of service reaching around the world."

CONSTANT EXPANSION

—to serve Chevrolet owners better

SINCE January 1st more than a million new Chevrolets have been delivered to owners—making the Chevrolet Motor Company, for the second consecutive year, the world's largest builder of automobiles!

This outstanding achievement has been attained not only because of the quality and value of Chevrolet cars—but also because there has been a constant expansion of Chevrolet service facilities.

In order to bring these mammoth facilities of the Chevrolet factories to Chevrolet dealers and owners everywhere, there have been erected 26 huge parts warehouses in the principal centers of distribution. This expansion program is continually going on—for four great additional warehouses will be in operation by January first and seven more by the summer of 1929.

Into the service departments of all Chevrolet dealers, Chevrolet has brought special tools and shop equipment—designed under the supervision of Chevrolet engineers. This equipment definitely assures maximum speed and precision and the lowest possible cost in the performance of every Chevrolet service and repair operation—which are charged for on a flat rate basis.

Furthermore, all of these tremendous facilities have been made available to 15,000 authorized service stations manned by skilled mechanics, over 25,000 of whom have been factory trained to efficiently handle every repair operation on a Chevrolet car. In addition, there are over 4,000 other points where genuine Chevrolet parts may be obtained.

Uniformly efficient, uniformly reliable and within easy reach of everybody everywhere—this great service organization is maintaining at peak efficiency the fine performance for which Chevrolet cars have always been renowned.

We cordially invite you to come in and see how our service facilities reflect the influence of this great national service program.

Since Armistice Has Cost
$65,800,000.

In this year of the tenth anniversary of the Armistice, which ended the world war, the American Red Cross still finds a great army of disabled and sick veterans requiring assistance, and whose families also must be aided, according to a statement by James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations of the Red Cross at Washington. In the ten years since November 11, 1918, the Red Cross has expended approximately $65,800,000 in veteran relief work, Mr. Fieser said.

There is a daily average of 25,500 disabled and sick world war veterans enrolled in Veterans' Bureau and other government hospitals which care for these men and women, and about the same annual average of veterans succumbing to wounds and illness, for whose dependents the Red Cross is pledged to give required assistance, Mr. Fieser pointed out.

In addition, the Red Cross, under its charter granted by Congress, has a definite duty towards service men of the regular establishment of Army, Navy and Marine Corps, and follows them to all foreign ports or duty. The expenditure in this work for the year ending June 30, 1928, was $307,458, the annual report states.

"Upon the Red Cross rests the sacred obligation of carrying on relief work for the disabled service and ex-service men and women and their dependents, taking up the work where the Government is not able to carry on," Mr. Fieser said. "The Red Cross has 349 trained workers, serving either full or part time in the field, in liaison work, camps and hospitals, who are always in personal contact with the sick and disabled in hospitals, with the men in the regular Army, Navy and Marine Corps, and who stand ever ready to serve veterans back in civil life, who need the help of a friendly agency to aid in establishing their rights and claims.

"To maintain this staff and to support the practical services they render, the Red Cross made expenditure of $1,169,795 for the year ending June 30, 1928. In addition 2,700 Red Cross Chapters, in that number of communities, who have established special work for the disabled service and ex-service people, expended during the past year $1,732,000."

The annual report states that the number of death claims alone of veterans which are handled through the War Service at national headquarters of the Red Cross, has increased from 12,010 in 1923-24 to 24,602 in 1927-28. During the year ending June 30, 1928, War Service assisted Chapters in adjusting Government claims amounting in benefits to veterans or their dependents, to $693,203.42 in awards for compensation, insurance, adjusted compensation, burial expenses, etc. In addition to this amount, which represented lump sum payments, awards were obtained for $183,389 in monthly installments of insurance and compensation and in quarterly adjusted compensation payments.

Mr. Fieser points out that Red Cross Roll Call comes once each year, and that it is the only occasion upon which the Red Cross asks for funds with which to carry on its activities, of which War Service is one. From Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day, the American people are asked to support this work through their Red Cross memberships.

GOAL OF RED CROSS ANNUAL ROLL CALL 5,000,000 MEMBERS

Disaster Relief and Work for Veterans Cause Heavy Drain on Resources.

In order to enable the American Red Cross to carry on its broad activities, ranging from service to the world war veteran to instant response in time of disaster, a membership of 5,000,000 should be enrolled, and in this year of 1928-1929 that is the goal set for the twelfth annual roll call, to be held from November 11 to 29, Armistice to Thanksgiving Day.

John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross at Washington, in calling upon the nation for 5,000,000 adult members, directs attention to the great expenditures required of the Red Cross for disaster and veteran relief work, and for its many other activities devoted to health preservation and improvement and to cutting down the number of accidental deaths, through life saving and first aid courses.

"The Red Cross should at all times have a large reserve fund," Judge Payne stated, "because when disaster strikes, and this organization is called into instant action, there is no time to stop and raise funds. Dollars may be lives, so we should have at all times a good reserve. We have been forced each year to draw upon our reserves, and we find that the demands are increasing annually."

Judge Payne pointed out that in the fiscal year of 1927-28, the Red Cross had expended aid in 66 major catastrophes in the United States and its insular possessions, and in 22 nations abroad. This does not include the West Indies hurricane disaster in Puerto Rico and Florida, which occurred after the close of the Red Cross fiscal year, June 30, 1928.

The Red Cross expenditures for disaster in that period were $16,544,258.87, of which approximately $13,000,000 was expended in the Mississippi Valley for the flood relief work which came from a fund contributed by the public. More than $1,000,000 was expended in the St. Louis tornado damage, and more than $1,000,000 in New England. In both cases public relief funds were raised, although in New England the Red Cross contributed in excess of $500,000 from its own funds for the relief work. In the majority of the other 66 disasters, and in all of the 22 foreign catastrophes in which the Red Cross extended aid, the money came from its own resources.

The largest item in the annual budget of the Red Cross is for its veteran relief and work for disabled ex-service and service men, upon which it expended in this year $1,169,795.

Every man and woman is asked by Judge Payne to join the Red Cross during the roll call period, to aid in these humanitarian enterprises.

Ten years after the Armistice, the American Red Cross still carries on for the world war veteran, providing comfort and entertainment for him in hospital, adding his family where necessary, preparing and following through his claims for insurance, compensation or disability.

America holds the Red Cross emblem sacred because it represents a universal helpfulness—a service to all citizens—without regard to race, color or creed.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

JERRY DUNN, star reporter on a large newspaper, covers a garden fete given by Spencer Hayden, a millionaire. There he meets Ann Tremaine, debutante daughter of a wealthy banker, who is engaged to marry Hector Richards, whom she does not love. She becomes interested in Dunn and pretends she is a poor girl who has crashed the party. Dunn rails against the idle rich and his ideas stir Ann. She confesses she belongs to the class he hates and Dunn is shocked, but admits he could fall in love with her if they belonged to the same social group. When she returns home that night Dunn reappears. He asks her to give up the worthless life she is leading and make her way in the world. She promises to leave home and goes in to pack her bags. Jerry takes Ann to his boarding house and there she meets Steve Harrison, a husky young pugilist, who attracts her immediately. It is after midnight but she goes into Jerry's room for a chat.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XII
JERRY DUNN'S room, in the contrast to her own, was almost spacious; he had an open bookcase crammed with volumes; his chairs were upholstered, worn, comfortable. There was a reading lamp on a center table and a litter of papers. To be here alone with him, in the middle of the night, gave her a new thrill; she tingled with eager anticipation for the morrow, the beginning of her new life.

Now, she was at last absolutely her own mistress, free from all tiresome social obligations, at liberty to test her wings in the wonderful world where men and women enjoyed the priceless privilege of doing as they pleased. And because these people were new to her and the work-a-day world was a novelty her spirits soared—each day would be a new adventure, a fascinating experience.

All of her life Ann had felt the restrictions of home, the social hindrance of society—the cramped circle of moneyed people. They had been like hot-house plants, too artificial. Here she would find the stimulation of crude, invigorating life—contact with people who actually were alert and alive with the struggle of living.

What was it Jerry Dunn had told her? Something about the whole joy of life being in the struggle upward. He had influenced her, despite their brief acquaintance, more than any person she had ever met; his mind was behind her dreams, turning them to realities. Their association already had something established in it—a comradeship taken for granted. She felt toward him like—that'll take a mile if you give him an inch. I wouldn't advise you to let him think you might fall for him—he mightn't understand."

"Oh, dear!" Ann said. "I didn't run away from home to play everything cautiously. That's the beauty of this scheme—I can take a few chances. And now you start telling me I mustn't."

"Do you want to take chances?" Jerry asked shrewdly.

"Why not?"
"That's up to you—but I'm here, ready, willing and able any time you feel affectionate—or anything like that."

What he said ruffled her the wrong way. "You! I thought you aspired to be a friend—not a lover."

"You won't get anywhere monkeying around with eggs like Steve Harrison," Jerry said. "Of course, if you want to take the risk—hop to it. Only, it doesn't look good to me."

He was slightly piqued and Ann, liking him immensely, could not be irritated for long. He was brainy and cynical and meant more in her life than any other man—he alone had opened for her the magic door of freedom. . . . there was, too, a pleasing zest in the sure knowledge that he was crazy about her. It made her a little proud, for she felt he considered most girls rather empty-headed. But she didn't want him to get personal. . . . affectionate. . . .

"Tomorrow," she said, "I suppose I'll have to get a job. Any suggestions?"
"Several thousand girls will be looking for jobs tomorrow—join 'em. Just get out and find work—and make good at it. You do it—and you'll come up tomorrow night with a new glow and a chip on your shoulder."

Long after she was stretched out in her bed waiting for sleep to come to her eyes, she felt, even then, the new glow, the pleasant sensation of a chip on her shoulder. She stood four-square with the world and her slim, virginal body was flooded with awakening strength.
Down the hall, Jerry Dunn in his room was sleeping and somewhere else under that roof was a young giant, Steve Harrison. . . . he kept recurring in Ann's mind and keeping her awake.

Dairy Notes

Never mix warm and cold cream. Cool the warm cream before mixing.

Wash the separator after each separation. A separator that is not clean will not skim clean.

It's the last few pints of milk, bushels of grain, or other units of production, which are the most profitable.

Variety and irregularity are two very different things. Variety in the ration may be helpful. The cow may resist a little change but irregularity in the time of feeding is all wrong.

If you are observing, you have noticed that the cows milk better on a sunny day in any but the excessively hot months.

If she produces less than 300 pounds of butterfat a year, a cow is not producing as much profit for her owner as she should or would if better fed.

Poor producing cows should be eliminated from the dairy herd by careful culling. The best method of doing this is to join a cow testing association.

RED CROSS NURSES AID IN HURRICANE DISASTER

In addition to their year around work in the Public Health field, the Public Health nurses of the American Red Cross have answered a number of calls to combat epidemics, and in disaster work during the year just ending, the Red Cross states.

Their greatest task was in the relief following the West Indies hurricane when 20 nurses were despatched to Florida and 32 to Porto Rico, to assume charge of the health work there. Epidemic conditions were especially grave in both places, and inoculation of several hundred thousand persons had to be arranged in order to prevent spread of contagions. Nursing the injured, the sick, aged and young and caring for the newborn were heavy tasks in both areas.

The Red Cross nurses also were called upon for work in epidemics in communities, including the serious septic sore throat epidemic in New England and a typhoid epidemic in New York state.

More than 650 Red Cross Chapters throughout the nation operate nursing services which they support altogether or in part.

VETERAN RELIEF IS BIG RED CROSS TASK

Service to Disabled in Ten Years
Since Armistice Has Cost
$65,800,000.

In this year of the tenth anniversary of the Armistice, which ended the world war, the American Red Cross still finds a great army of disabled and sick veterans requiring assistance, and whose families also must be aided, according to a statement by James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations of the Red Cross at Washington. In the ten years since November 11, 1918, the Red Cross has expended approximately $65,800,000 in veteran relief work. Mr. Fieser said there is a daily average of 25,500 disabled and sick world war veterans enrolled in Veterans' Bureau and other government hospitals which care for these men and women, and about the same annual average of veterans succumbing to wounds and illness, for whose dependents the Red Cross is pledged to give required assistance. "To maintain this staff and to support the practical services they render, the Red Cross made expenditure of $1,169,795 for the year ending June 30, 1928. In addition 2,700 Red Cross Chapters, in that number of communities, who have established special work for the disabled service and ex-service people, expended during the past year $1,732,000."

She confesses she belongs to the class he hates and Dunn is shocked, but admits he could fall in love with her if they belonged to the same social group. When she returns home that night Dunn reappears. He asks her to give up the worthless life she is leading and make her way in the world. She promises to leave home and goes in to pack her bags. Jerry takes Ann to his boarding house and there she meets Steve Harrison, a husky young pugilist, who attracts her immediately. It is after midnight but she goes into Jerry's room for a chat.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XII

JERRY DUNN'S room, in the contrast to her own, was almost spacious; he had an open bookcase crammed with volumes; his chairs were upholstered, worn, comfortable. There was a reading lamp on a center table and a litter of papers. To be here alone with him, in the middle of the night, gave her a new thrill; she tingled with eager anticipation for the morning, the beginning of her new life.

Now, she was at last absolutely free from all ties, from all tiresome social obligations, at liberty to test her wings in the wonderful world where men and women enjoyed the priceless privilege of doing as they pleased. And because these people were new to her and the work-a-day world was a novelty her spirits soared—each day would be a new adventure, a fascinating experience.

All of her life Ann had felt the restrictions of home, the social hindrance of society—the cramped circle of moneyed people. They had been like hot-house plants, too artificial. Here she would find the stimulation of crude, invigorating life—contact with people who actually were alert and alive with the struggle of living.

What was it Jerry Dunn had told her? Something about the whole joy of life being in the struggle upward. He had influenced her, despite their brief acquaintance, more than any person she had ever met; his mind was behind her dreams, turning them to realities. Their association already had something established in it—a comradeship taken for granted. She felt toward him like a lover.

With an inner twinge she knew that it wasn't the same kind of feeling she had for the husky young stranger, Steve Harrison. . . the startling fact was that she had received a strange, elemental thrill from the muscular and ignorant young commoner. . . "Well, now that you're started, how do you like it?" Jerry asked. They were utterly comfortable in the easy chairs of his room, relaxed and at ease.

"Great!" Ann told him. "I feel like we two are in on a great secret—only you could understand how people like Mrs. Yager and that handsome young brute, Steve Harrison, could represent an improvement over my own friends." "That's right," Jerry agreed. "At first sight, it isn't easy to be loving Steve and the landlady are elevating, but after all, if you don't know people like them you can't know life."

"Tell me about them—especially about Steve. He interested me." "I got that. Sort of cave-man appeal?" "Maybe." "Well, don't take him too seriously. He was in a garage and is ambitious to be a successful pugilist. At present he takes boxing lessons and appears it amateur bouts. He's a good egg, but dumb. Mrs. Yager sort of mothers him."

"I've never known his type," Ann mused. "I suppose he's perfectly safe?" "As long as you don't encourage him, he'll worship you from a distance," Jerry said. "But I imagine he's one of these bull-headed saps."

that'll take a mile if you give him an inch. I wouldn't advise you to let him think you might fall for him—he mightn't understand."

"Oh, dear!" Ann said. "I didn't run away from home to play everything cautiously. That's the beauty of this scheme—I can take a few chances. And now you start telling me I mustn't."

"Do you want to take chances?" Jerry asked shrewdly.

"Why not?" "That's up to you—but I'm here, ready, willing and able any time you feel affectionate—or anything like that."

What he said ruffled her the wrong way. "You! I thought you aspired to be a friend—not a lover."

"You won't get anywhere monkeying around with eggs like Steve Harrison," Jerry said. "Of course, if you want to take the risk—hop to it. Only, it doesn't look good to me."

He was slightly piqued and Ann, liking him immensely, could not be irritated for long. He was brainy and cynical and meant more in her life than any other man—he alone had opened for her the magic door of freedom. . . there was, too, a pleasing zest in the sure knowledge that he was crazy about her. It made her a little proud, for she felt he considered most girls rather empty-headed. But she didn't want him to get personal. . . affectionate. . .

"Tomorrow," she said, "I suppose I'll have to get a job. Any suggestions?"

"Several thousand girls will be looking for jobs tomorrow—join 'em. Just get out and find work—and make good at it. You do it—and you'll come up tomorrow night with a new glow and a chip on your shoulder."

Long after she was stretched out in her bed waiting for sleep to come to her eyes, she felt, even then, the new glow, the pleasant sensation of a chip on her shoulder. She stood four-square with the world and her slim, virginal body was flooded with awakening strength.

Down the hall, Jerry Dunn in his room was sleeping and somewhere else under that roof was a young clerk, Steve Harrison. . . he kept recurring in Ann's mind and keeping her awake.

Dairy Notes

Never mix warm and cold cream. Cool the warm cream before mixing.

Wash the separator after each separation. A separator that is not clean will not skim clean.

It's the last few pints of milk, bushels of grain, or other units of production, which are the most profitable.

Variety and irregularity are two very different things. Variety in the ration may be helpful. The cow may relish a little change but irregularity in the time of feeding is all wrong.

If you are observing, you have noticed that the cows milk better on a sunny day in any but the excessively hot months.

If she produces less than 30C pounds of butterfat a year, a cow is not producing as much profit for her owner as she should or would if better fed.

Poor producing cows should be eliminated from the dairy herd by careful culling. The best method of doing this is to join a cow testing association.

RED CROSS NURSES AID IN HURRICANE DISASTER

In addition to their year around work in the Public Health field, the Public Health nurses of the American Red Cross have answered a number of calls to combat epidemics, and in disaster work during the year just ending, the Red Cross states.

Their greatest task was in the relief following the West Indies hurricane when 20 nurses were dispatched to Florida and 32 to Porto Rico, to assume charge of the health work there. Epidemic conditions were especially grave in both places, and inoculation of several hundred thousand persons had to be arranged in order to prevent spread of contagions. Nursing the injured, the sick, aged and young and caring for the newborn were heavy tasks in both areas.

The Red Cross nurses also were called upon for work in epidemics in communities, including the serious septic sore throat epidemic in New England and a typhoid epidemic in New York state.

More than 550 Red Cross Chapters throughout the nation operate nursing services which they support altogether or in part.
